
The American Council for Capital Formation Center for Policy Research and the ClearPath Foundation invite you to a forum:

Energy Policy in the 115th Congress

Chairman Lisa Murkowski

Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee

Jay Faison

Founder and CEO
ClearPath Foundation

Meera Kohler

President
Alaska Village Electric Cooperative

With a new administration taking over in Washington, DC, policymakers have a chance to establish an energy strategy centered on innovation and production, rather than regulation. Will the U.S. adopt a new approach that increases our long-term security while protecting reliability, reducing environmental impacts, and lowering costs in rural areas? Will we take advantage of long-overlooked opportunities in nuclear, hydropower, and other technologies? Join us for a discussion on the opportunities for energy policy in the 115th Congress.

EVENT DETAILS

Who: Chairman Lisa Murkowski, Jay Faison, and Meera Kohler

What: Discussion on the Opportunities for Energy Policy in the 115th Congress
Moderated by Nick Juliano, Deputy Energy Editor, Politico

When: Wednesday, May 17, 2017, 8:30 – 10:00 am EDT (Breakfast will be provided)

Where: Newseum 8th Floor Conference Room, 555 Pennsylvania Ave., NW Washington, DC 20001

RSVP: Please register here

The ACCF Center for Policy Research is a nonprofit 501 (c)(3) organization that brings together academics, policymakers, business executives, and members of the press to discuss important new research on economic, energy, and environmental policies. Our endeavors are focused on policies to increase U.S. economic growth, job creation, and competitiveness. Center publications are circulated widely in the U.S. policymaking community and at international policy conferences.