

Statement By Jay Faison On U.S. Leaving Paris Agreement

ClearPath Founder Jay Faison has issued the following statement on the decision by the U.S. to leave the Paris climate accord:

“America’s withdrawal from the Paris accord is a personal blow to me. I have said many times that we don’t need to agree on the level of climate risk to agree on clean energy solutions. However, joining Nicaragua and Syria as the only countries not on board assigns zero risk to carbon emissions. The world will move on without us, probably with China in the lead. Regardless, ClearPath will remain committed to advancing clean energy innovation at the legislative and executive branches of government.”
